PROCEEDING

2012

PREFACE

Articles published in this proceeding are the result of the knowledge shared by undergraduate students from a number of universities in Indonesia about Culture & International Language (CIL). Being the 1st national scale seminar held by students from the English Department, Faculty of Letters in Soegijapranata Catholic University of Semarang, the 2012 committee has decided on a theme about "Actualizing Ourselves as a Part of Global Society through Local Culture and National Identity". This theme is broken down into a number of topics that students can dwell on, i.e. 1) Diversity of Local Culture, 2) Literature Studies Related to Local Culture, 3) Learning the International Culture through International Language Learning, 4) Culture Diversity in the Era of Globalization, 5) Using International Language to Promote Indonesian Culture. For ease of reference, in this proceeding, the first and second topic is grouped into one part, the third and fourth topic is grouped into another part, and topic five becomes the last part of discussion.

Being the first national seminar to be held on 4-5 June 2012, on behalf of the committee, the editors feel thankful to have received encouraging articles written in English from undergraduate students who originate not only from the city of Semarang but also from Salatiga, Yogyakarta, Malang, Jember, Surabaya, and Kendari. It is interesting to note that not only students as paper presenters are from the Faculty of Letters' English Departments, but also from the departments of Anthropology, Computer Science, Architecture and Design, as well as from Psychology. This proves that the theme of Culture and International Language has been approved by most university's multicultural environment.

Also on behalf of the committee, the editors are thankful that a nationally acclaimed artist Didik Nini Thowok agreed to be one of the Plenary speakers, who along with Jonathan Moore and Gerardus Majella Adhyanggono from the English Department of Faculty Letters, Soegijapranata Catholic University – have seen the importance of multiculturalism as a point to be influencing and shaping the global society we are all now living in.

The committee sees that this national event should be carried out again in future seminars with many other themes to come, since a discussion on Culture and International Language seemed like a never ending discussion to have. Therefore, participants and future paper presenters can look forward to a similar event.

Last but not least, the editors would like to thank all personnel such as the Rector, the Dean, the Vice Dean of Students Affairs, the Students Executive Board, the Student Senate and all committee members of the Faculty of Letters, Soegijapranata Catholic University of Semarang's 1st CIL Seminar, who have helped made the event a successful one. The editors, however, are particularly thankful for the sending of valuable articles to our desks so they can be compiled in this book. Content wise, all responsibility is placed on the writers themselves, who have used their precious time to write up their ideas and research for the seminar.

As editors, we encourage that students would revise their work based on the comments and suggestions received during the seminar, so the quality of the articles can be further developed and made better for other future publications. Nevertheless, we are pleased to have the opportunity to compile all of the articles, so they can be published as a proceeding with an acknowledged ISBN from the Indonesian government.

May this proceeding become a memorable gift for each and everyone involved!
