

008.0420
ROE
h

HANDBOOK for the McGraw-Hill GUIDE

Writing for College, Writing for Life

THIRD EDITION

Duane Roen

Arizona State University

Gregory R. Glau

Northern Arizona University

Barry M. Maid

Arizona State University

 PERPUSTAKAAN
No. INV	168-Lib-17
Th. Angg.	2017	Cat. C1
PARAP	2017	5/10-17

Connect
Learn
Succeed™

A Writer's Handbook

Why Editing Matters

C Common Sentence Problems

- C1 Sentence Fragments 3
- C2 Comma Splices and Run-ons 5
- C3 Misplaced and Dangling Modifiers 7
- Correcting misplaced modifiers
 - Correcting dangling modifiers
- C4 Subject-Verb Agreement Problems 9
- Compound subjects
 - Subject joined by or, nor, either . . . or, neither . . . nor
 - Subject and verb separated
 - Indefinite pronouns
 - Collective nouns
 - Who*, which, or that
- C5 Pronoun Agreement Problems 11
- Indefinite pronouns
 - Collective nouns
 - Generic nouns
 - Compound antecedents joined by and
 - Compound antecedents joined by or or nor
- C6 Unclear Pronoun Reference 12
- Ambiguous references
 - This*, that, it, and other unclear pronoun references
- C7 Pronoun Case Problems 14
- Compound subjects and objects
 - With a gerund
 - In comparisons
 - In relative clauses
- C8 Faulty Parallelism 17
- With correlative conjunctions
 - In comparisons

C9 Verb Form Problems 18

- ed or -d forms
- s or -es endings
- Nonstandard contractions
- Past vs. past perfect tense

C10 Adjective and Adverb Problems 19

- Following linking verbs
- Comparative and superlative forms
- Use of the comparative and superlative

C11 Mixed Constructions and Faulty Predication 20

- Mixed constructions
- Faulty predication

S Style

S1 Writing Concise Sentences 21

- Omitting unnecessary words
- Using active constructions
- Combining sentences

S2 Using Precise Words 23

- Exact language
- Vague, overused language
- Denotations and connotations of words
- Avoiding euphemisms
- Avoiding mixed metaphors

S3 Avoiding Clichés 25

S4 Avoiding Biased Language 26

S5 Avoiding Slang, Colloquial Language, and the Inappropriate Use of Jargon 27

S6 Using Active Language 28

- Using active and passive voices appropriately
- Using action verbs and precise nouns

S7 Glossary of Usage 29

S8 Missing Words and Incomplete Comparisons 37

- Conjunctions, articles, prepositions, verb elements, the to in infinitives
- In comparisons
- That*

S9 Integrating Quotations 38

- Using announcing (signal) phrases
- Keeping to a minimum

S10 Coordination and Subordination 40

- Coordination
- Subordination

S11 Sentence Variety 41

- Using different sentence types
- Using different sentence openings

P Punctuation

P1 Periods, Question Marks, and Exclamation Points 43

- Statements and indirect questions
- Direct questions and questions in a series
- Sentences expressing strong emotion

P2 Commas 44

- To join independent clauses
- After introductory elements
- To set off nonrestrictive elements
- To separate items in a series
- With coordinate adjectives
- With parenthetical expressions, direct address, tag questions, and direct quotations
- With dates, addresses, and numbers
- To clarify meaning
- Avoid common misuses of the comma

P3 Semicolons 51

- a. To separate independent clauses
- b. To separate clauses with a conjunctive adverb
- c. With items in a series that contains internal commas
- d. Common misuses

P4 Colons 53

- a. To draw attention to sentence elements
- b. In salutations, titles, citations of sacred works, time
- c. Common misuses

P5 Dashes 54

- a. To set off emphatic material
- b. To set off definitions, lists, personal observations
- c. Overuse of dashes

P6 Parentheses 55

- a. To enclose a digression
- b. To enclose numbers or letters identifying a series
- c. With acronyms
- d. With other punctuation marks

P7 Brackets 56P8 Slashes 56*P9 Ellipsis Marks 57*P10 Quotation Marks 59

- a. To set off direct quotations
- b. With other punctuation marks
- c. Single quotation marks for quotations within quotations
- d. To indicate titles of short works
- e. Common misuses

P11 Apostrophes 62

- a. To show possession
- b. To form contractions
- c. Other conventional uses

M MechanicsM1 Capitalization 64

- a. Proper nouns
- b. Titles
- c. First word of a sentence
- d. First word of quotations

M2 Abbreviations and Acronyms 66

- a. For time designations
- b. Titles and degrees
- c. Names of organizations, government agencies, companies, radio and television stations
- d. Computer/Internet terms
- e. Latin abbreviations

M3 Numbers 68

- a. Spelling out numbers of one or two words
- b. Using figures for numbers of more than two words
- c. At the beginning of a sentence

M4 Italics (Underlining) 70

- a. Titles of long works
- b. Words or phrases from other languages
- c. Ships, trains, aircraft, spacecraft
- d. Words, letters, numbers as themselves

M5 Hyphens 71

- a. Compound words
- b. Compound modifiers
- c. Compound numbers and fractions
- d. With some prefixes and suffixes to avoid ambiguity

M6 Spelling 73

- a. Words that are similar to other words
- b. Spelling rules and exceptions

I A Guide for Multilingual WritersI1 Articles 76

- a. With count or noncount nouns
- b. No article with singular proper nouns

I2 Verbs 77

- a. Helping verbs
- b. Conditional (if) clauses
- c. Gerunds or infinitives following verbs
- d. Two- and three-word verbs

I3 Prepositions 83

- a. To indicate place or location
- b. To indicate time
- c. To form idiomatic expressions

I4 Participles 85I5 Words That Are Missing or Repeated 85*I6 Adjective Order 86*I7 This, That, These, and Those 87*I8 British or Canadian vs. U.S. Spelling 87*G A Guide to Sentence Structure*G1 Parts of Speech 88

- a. Nouns
- b. Pronouns
- c. Verbs
- d. Adjectives
- e. Adverbs
- f. Prepositions
- g. Conjunctions
- h. Interjections

G2 Parts of Sentences 95

- a. Subjects and predicates
- b. Objects and complements
- c. Phrases
- d. Independent clauses
- e. Subordinate clauses

G3 Sentence Structures and Purposes 100

- a. Four sentence structures
- b. Four sentence purposes

Writer's Workshops, Possible Revisions 101Index 104

DONATED BY

The Asia Foundation
BOOKS FOR ASIA
NOT FOR SALE